

March 9th, 2012 Half Day Workshop

Slides and Ladders: Navigating Predictable Crises in the Nonprofit World

Does your day sometimes feel like a game of Chutes and Ladders?

One minute you are celebrating a great success, only to be hit by a crisis the next. Let's face it, "chutes" happen.

Gail Johnson Vaughan, sought after international trainer, will walk participants through these predictable crises to build an understanding of each stage and why it is important to acknowledge and celebrate the movement from stage to stage. The workshop will help reframe the crisis of the moment as a sign of success at the previous stage – a milestone signaling a need to make the necessary adjustments to be successful as you move up the developmental ladder. Participants will also learn how to anticipate and prepare for these milestones, easing the transition. As a learning tool, attendees will get to play a new board game designed specifically for this workshop.
